"WE OWE THEM NOTHING!"

Consul Perreault defends Greater Montreal media

Earlier this Wednesday, Consul Perreault dismantled, with the support of a narrow majority of the Montréal Council, the discussions surrounding the acquisitions of Portland Tower by the American corporation News Network 54. She has accused the Canadian government of backing American media corporations against the interests of long-established Canadian media like Diverse Media Systems and Bell-Québecor.

NN54, the biggest American media and news conglomerate, has been courting the Consulate to obtain the rights to Portland Tower, which the city bought from Petrochem a year ago. The Canadian President Jacob Gregor backed the NN54 offer, offering to finance a part of the investment.

Owning Portland Tower would have allowed NN54 to be represented in the Council of Greater Montréal. Consul Perreault has not commented on the future of this tower in the City of Longueuil.

DIVERTISSEMENT

Où est Alicia Poitiers ?

Alicia Poitiers has not made any public appearances since the 18th of February, a source close to the update reveals. Another such source confided that the star of the megahit The Best of Me has not been seen at a big after-concert party by SYNTHCHOC, where people hoped to find her.

The rumor mill is going crazy on the subject, but the French actress, now adopted Montrealer – has been strangely silent in the past days. The Update will keep you updated about this story.

OPINION

THE "EXOTIC": A HEDONIST'S GAME

From Danielle Bombarda, columnist

We started seeing them in fashion shows, but now they are in the streets: these young people who strut around with bunny ears, animal tails or covered in fur. We can see them dragging society down.

We have seen it, a few weeks ago, with the tragedy at the Centennial. This young lady, heavily modified and abused to provide pleasure, who we can remember, mentally broke and assassinated distinguished members of our society, before burning their room. Sexual deviants and crazy arsonists: the exotics treat their innumerable mental illnesses with cyberware implants!

Political correctness wants to stop us but let us dare speak out! Personal expression is one thing, but giving oneself animal traits and excessive body modifications is how we reject our humanity.

Food for thought...
