CAT COLONY SEIZED IN VILLE-MARIE

From Gregor Pavlovic, journalist

An illegal cat breeding operation has been dismantled by the SPVM during the night of the 28th. Three suspects have been apprehended. The SPVM is currently on the lookout of two other suspected collaborators: a lady of Asian descent in her sixties as well as a balding white man in his forties.

Ever since the spread of the OV-28 biovirus, authorities take cat population control on the Island very seriously. Ov-28 is transmitted to humans by bites from felines and often results in cerebral death of the victim after only a few days.

The City of Montréal reminds residents that the current reward for help in this effort is of 18 eurodollars per head.

ZETATECH REVEALS NEW 2023 OFFERINGS

From Frédéric Therrien, columnist

Yesterday, the American champion in wetware technology, Zetatech, revealed its 2023 catalogue in the Night City Conference Center. Among them, the "Football zPro" was the one to steal the show. Zetatech claims that the chip will allow users to instantly learn soccer. The chip was made in collaboration with Barcelona-born world champion, Hector Ora.

Zetatech also revealed a new series of combat skill chips, with new models coming for handgun and shoulder arms handling. They also showcased the new "Evasion zER" chip, which uses integrated algorithms to aid in avoiding fast moving objects, like cars or martial art attacks.

The Californian Megacorporation also announced a variety of kitchen related chips, to aid in cooking. They aim to start launching their new products starting on the 18th of June, with the "Restaurant zPro" series.
